Blog
Trafficking

(Unsplash/Jacob Kiesow)

by A Nun's Life Ministry

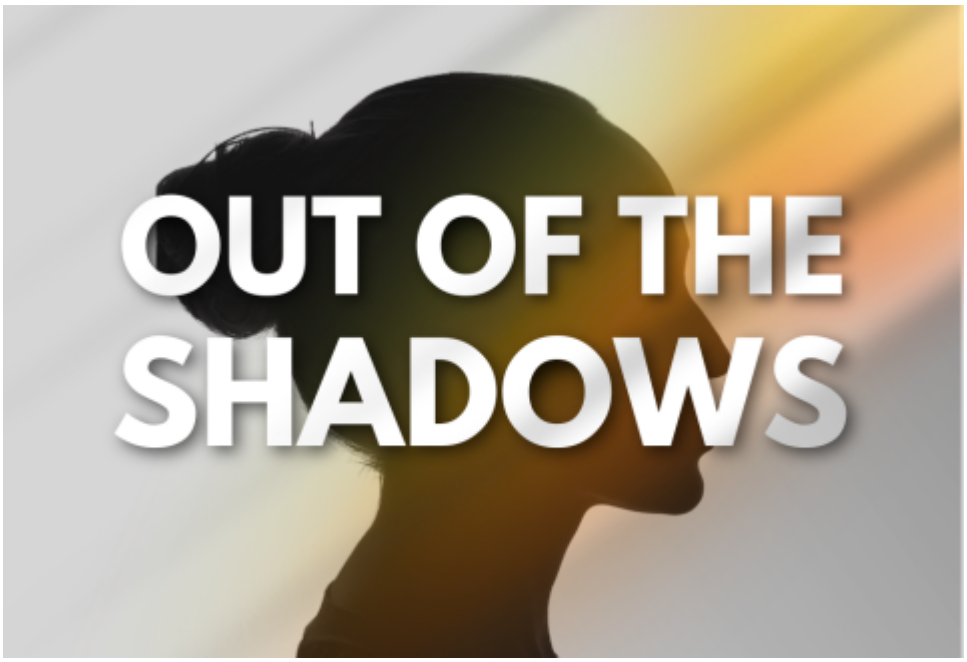

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

May 23, 2025

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Editor's note: This story is part of Global Sisters Report's yearlong series, "Out of the Shadows: Confronting Violence Against Women," which will focus on the ways Catholic sisters are responding to this global phenomenon.

(GSR logo/Olivia Bardo)

Human trafficking survivors walk a long and winding road — but with the right support, as Sr. Margaret Kruse relates, there is hope for new life.

A Sister of St. Francis of Assisi, Kruse's community is located in St. Francis, Wisconsin, just south of Milwaukee. Her community is one of seven women's religious congregations, and one Lutheran church, that collaborated to found Sisters Program South, located in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Sisters Program South is a drop-in center for women who are trapped in human trafficking.

Click here to listen to the full episode of "In Good Faith" where this clip is from.

Advertisement

GSR has recently acquired A Nun's Life Ministry. Revisit full episodes of all the ministry's podcasts (Ask Sister, In Good Faith, Random Nun Clips and more, like the archived Motherhouse Road Trips) at ANunsLife.org.

This story appears in the Out of the Shadows: Confronting Violence Against Women feature series. View the full series.